ABSENCE CAUSES SURPRISE.

Crown Prince Remains Away From Berlin for New Year.

Berlin, January 2.—Considerable comment has been caused here by the fact that the Crown Prince remains in Dantzig over the New Year, not participating for the first time in Berlin's festivities and not having seen his new-born son. It is officially announced that only a slight cold is compelling his remaining indoors, although on Friday his arrival in Berlin yesterday was reported probable.

In court circles rumors are afloat of a serious misunderstanding between the Kaiser and his son on account of the political situation. These are contradicted. It being pointed out that the Crown Prince and Princess came to Berlin one day the first week in December and dined with the Emperor, which they say discounts the stories of a quarrel.

The medical world is inclined to believe that the Crown Prince is suffering from a serious disease, rather than an attack of influenza, and that he is leaving away from his wife and children for caution's sake. There is an uneasy feeling among the Germans, growing from a desire for a definite statement from the doctors.

Mr. Twigg and his bride will leave the same night for New York, where they will board a steamer for Europe. It is their intention to spend the winter in Italy and Egypt.

Early in the spring they will live at "Lodge Manor," an estate of some acres, near Markham, Lancaster county, which was recently purchased by Mr. Twigg, and on which he is arranging to plant one of the largest apple orchards in the world.
